MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS REPORT

ECONOMIC REVIEW

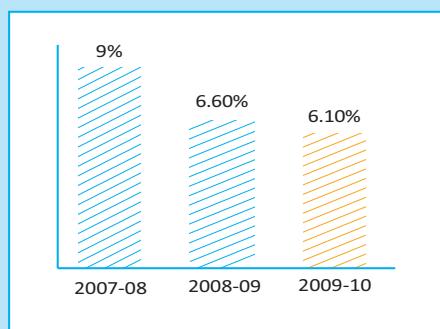

World Economy

It was the year when there was a global economic resurgence. After kneeling down to the global recession during the year 2008-09, every economy across the globe showed signs of improvement which was mainly led by the stimulus packages doled out by the governments of leading economies across the globe. BRIC countries mainly led by China and India were the front runners on account of huge domestic demand and provided the thrust on infrastructure creation within the core sector.

AN ECONOMY BETTER KNOWN AS A CONSUMPTION-LED ECONOMY

Indian GDP estimate

India, the fourth largest global economy in the world and second among the BRIC Nations, has slowly graduated to the elite list of 10 economic power houses in the world. It recently passed itself as a trillion dollar economy with its current GDP hovering around 7% supported by the Industrial Sector which is growing at a pace of 8% with its ever increasing foreign reserves.

Number of reasons supporting India's optimism story is led mainly by the population growth of the country which itself indicates a bright future for the consumers demand in the years to come. The population of the country which is estimated now to be around 1.1 billion is expected to touch 1.35 billion around 2020-21.

The increasing income levels of the people are fuelling the growth thus creating huge prospects for increased consumption in the years to come which would also increase the market for infrastructure and real estate development in the country driven mainly by factors like urbanization, favorable demographics, etc.

INDUSTRY STRUCTURES & DEVELOPMENTS

The sub-prime crisis resulted in a global meltdown and its direct impact was seen on the steel industry whose products are mainly consumed for infrastructure development purposes.

The major consuming nations of steel at one time were US, European Nations, Japan, etc but is now mainly controlled and consumed by the growing economies of the world including the BRIC countries.

World crude steel production has been estimated to be around 1220 MT in 2009-10 as compared to 1326.50 MT in 2008-09, a decrease of almost 8% [Source : World Steel Association]. But this decrease is mainly attributable due to the recessionary effects during first half of the year.

Production has risen in the last half of 2009 compared to the first half, but is not yet at the levels of the first half of 2008. Non-Chinese crude steel production rose from an average of about 45 MT in the first few months of 2009 to about 60 MT by the end of 2009 which is a clear sign of the green shoots of recovery. Chinese production showed a more gradual increase during 2009.

Crude Steel production for European Union decreased by 30% to 139.1 MT. CIS countries showed a decrease of 15% in crude steel production with the overall total down to 97 MT. Production in the USA dropped by 36% in the year to date to 58.1 MT. South America total production was down by 20% to 37.8 MT. Steel production in Africa and the Middle East fell by 4% to 31.4 MT in 2009. Crude Steel production in five Asian countries increased by 4% during the year to 776.3 MT.

Market Share in Global Production :

The Optimism Story of India

"Population growth, increased income levels, various urbanization plans by the government alongwith huge investments in infrastructure development is thus resulting in propelling India among the top 10 economies of the World".

Indian Steel industry scenario :

The steel industry in India is concentrated in the east, south and west of the country. The integrated foundries are located in the east, while electric steel is produced predominantly in the south and west. In future east will see rapid expansion as more integrated capacities are being built in Orissa and other eastern states due to its raw material advantage. Although India is now one of the worlds top ten steel producers, its domestic output is insufficient to meet the demand in all segments.

According to the Ministry of Steel, Government of India, the country has emerged as the fifth largest producer of steel in the world and is likely to become the second largest producer of crude steel by 2015-16 more than doubling its capacity to 124 MT as part of the push being given to assist overall infrastructure development.

Production

Steel production rose 4% to reach 60 MT in 2009-10 [Source : Ministry of Steel]. The National Steel Policy 2005 had projected an annual steel consumption growth of 7% based on GDP growth rate of 7-7.5 % and production of 110 MT of crude steel by 2019-20.

Looking at the current growth trends it is believed that in the next five years demand will grow at a rate greater than 10% as compared to around 7% growth achieved between 1991-92 and 2005-06 and the crude steel production capacity in the country is expected to be around 150 MT by 2011-12.

Consumption

India's steel consumption grew by 8% for the year ended March 2010, over the same period a year ago on account of improved demand from sectors like automobile, infrastructure and housing. The country's steel consumption increased to 56.3 MT in the 12 months to March 2010 from 52.3 MT in the previous year [Source : Ministry of Steel].

GROWTH DRIVERS

The strength of any economy is viewed by the robustness of its infrastructure sector which includes Railways, Roads & Bridges, Airports, Ports, Power (including the most awaited Nuclear Power Projects) and Real Estate.

The total infrastructure investments in the 11th Five Year Plan (2008-12) in sectors like power, roads, railways, irrigation & water supply and sanitation have been estimated at Rs. 16.80 Lakh Crores. The total spending during 2010-20 in the same sectors is anticipated to be over Rs. 54 Lakh Crores, which would boost the overall demand for steel and related products.

Airports

Railways

Roads

Aviation industry saw a phenomenal growth in the past few years and is again trying to regain its momentum after the global economic meltdown. With increase in passenger traffic and air freight that is constantly on the upscale, the Government of India has embarked on an estimated investment of about US$ 9 billion for the development, upgradation and addition of new airports between 2006-13. The vision 2020 document prepared by the Ministry of Civil Aviation envisages an India with 500 operational airports, thus posing new and bigger opportunities for the steel sector and its products in the days to come.

The Indian Railway covers 63,140 km route, runs about 10,000 trains and carries more than half a million tonne of freight traffic. The Indian Railway has planned a mammoth investment of Rs. 2168 billion in the Eleventh Five Year Plan and the Southern Railway is planning a US$ 137.44 million investment for port connectivity projects at Chennai, Mangalore, Ennore and Cochin over the next decade.

The railway plans to construct special tracks connecting the four major metropolitan cities i.e. Delhi, Kolkata, Mumbai and Chennai, doubling of its tracks capacity, new freight corridors for easy handling of freight traffic and addition of new routes to the existing metro railway facilities at Delhi and Kolkata. Besides it has also started new metro services at Hyderabad and Bangalore.

India is expected to have a road network of approximately 3.34 million km, which is also regarded as the 2nd largest in the world. The highways of the country forms 2% of the total road network while handling 40% of the total traffic.

Government of India launched an ambitious project better known as National Highway Development Programme, involving a total investment of US$ 54.1 billion upto 2012 with the aim of upgrading, rehabilitating and broadening of 50,000 km of the total national highways.

Power

India, the world's 6th largest power consumer with an installed capacity of almost 150 GW. India expects to add to its capacity around 315 GW - 335 GW by 2017 (Source: McKinsey & Company) with a total investment of US$ 75 billion. An investment of US$ 17.36 billion is expected in power transmission across the Eleventh Five year plan. An estimate of around 1,20,000 villages with a total investment of US$ 2.745 billion is planned by the Government of India through the Rural Electrification scheme.

Ports

There are 12 major and 187 minor ports, where approximately 95% of merchandise trade by volume is handled. The National Maritime Development Policy (NMDP) aims to improve connectivity and facilitate private investment, etc and thus a total of approximately US$ 11.50 billion has been allocated.

OUTLOOK

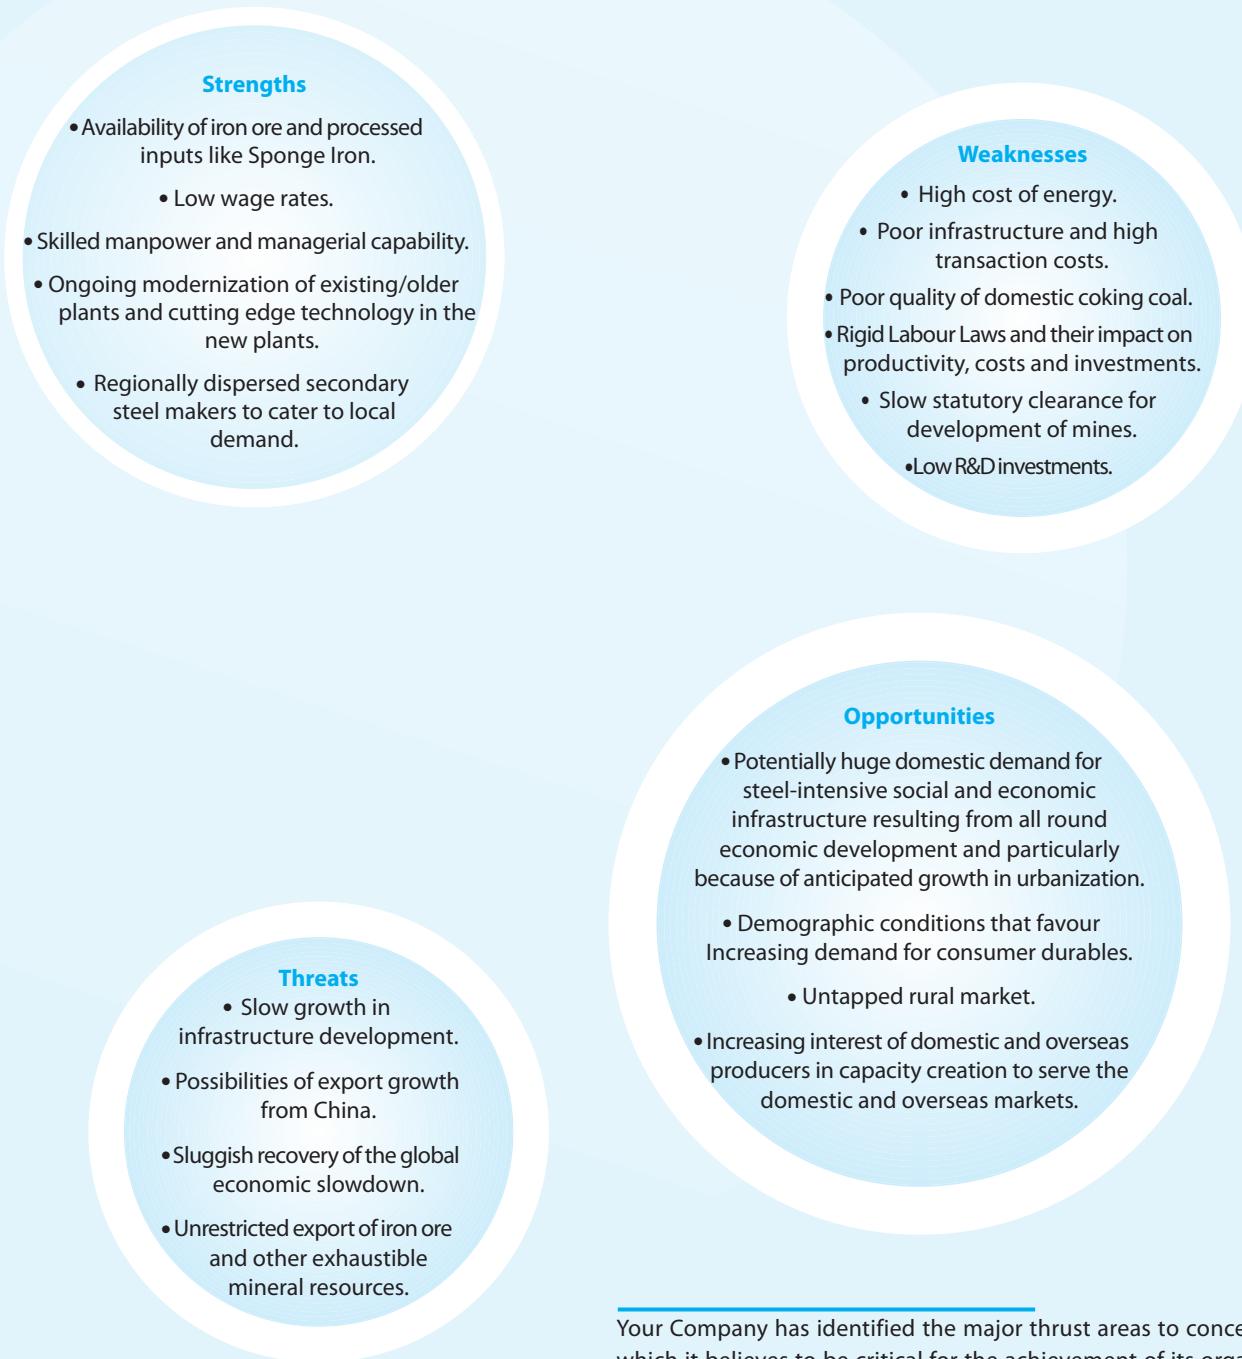

India's construction industry is expected to grow fivefold which in turn will shoot up the demand for the steel industry. In the Union Budget 2010-11, the government has allocated US$ 37.4 billion to the infrastructure sector and has increased the allocation for road transport by 13% to US$ 4.3 billion which will further promote the steel industry. Up to 10 million new homes are required to be built each year till 2030. Strong population growth, rising incomes and decreasing household sizes are forcing comprehensive measures to be taken in the housing sector. The pent-up demand for housing is estimated at around 20 million units by the Indian Construction Association. The Ministry for Urban Development and Poverty Alleviation claims that no less than 31 million dwellings are needed. The hosting of the Commonwealth Games in New Delhi in 2010 should generate additional stimulus for the construction industry and thus boost demand for steel.

The automotive industry may consume a relatively small proportion of steel output, but its growth rate is the highest and is one of the most important clients for the steel industry.

National Steel Policy projects an export ratio (i.e., percentage of production exported) in the range of 25-26% by 2019-20. Currently, India exports about 10% of its total finished steel production.
