Commenting on the company's strong performance, Mr Ashok Atluri, Managing Director, Zen Technologies said "Zen Technologies is on a growth trajectory. We think the results of FY16 will sustain the momentum. We will continue investing in product innovation, R&D, geographical expansion and human capital, while continuing to deliver value to both our shareholders and customers."

Zen is presently bidding for cumulative contracts worth more than Rs 500 Crores. We expect the outcome of the orders to be known starting from the second quarter of FY 2015-16.

Zen expects to benefit from the decisive actions of the Ministry of Defence (MoD) with respect to procurements. Operational preparedness has become important, both with the defence and police forces. For operational preparedness adequate training with different scenarios is a must, which can be effectively imparted using simulators. We expect such focus should result in procurement of more simulators.

MoD has given a significant push to exports by streamlining the permission process for exports in the past few months. We will be exporting simulators during the year and expect exports to accelerate in the coming years. Zen is participating in DSEI 2015, the world's largest defence exhibition, in London in the month of September 2015.

From offering training and simulator equipment, Zen's focus has shifted to providing full-fledged solutions like Combat Training Centres to its clients. These are customized to each clients' needs and involves integrating training simulators, equipment, software, terrains and training methodologies as a package.
